Hiring Manager
Hiring Team
Jubelio

Dear Hiring Team,

An online seller does not buy a webstore. They buy the moment their first order arrives and the stock count updates itself. The distance between signing up and that moment is where onboarding either earns a customer for years, or loses them in a week.

I have spent 11 years on exactly that distance, from both sides of the table.

On the support side: 11 years in technical support and operations for six international brokerage platforms, with ticketing workflows, SLA frameworks, and escalation paths as daily practice. I know how to run kickoff calls, translate a client's business needs into configuration decisions, keep many cases moving at once, and turn recurring pain points into documentation that scales.

On the builder side: I design, build, and run my own production websites and online stores. WordPress and custom stacks, HTML and CSS, responsive layouts, product catalogs, payment integrations. When a layout breaks or a plugin misbehaves, I have fixed that exact class of problem on my own storefronts first.

That combination is what this role needs: someone who speaks the client's language in Bahasa Indonesia and English, explains a technical trade-off in plain words, and then opens the configuration panel and does the work.

Jubelio grows by making its merchants successful, and onboarding is where that success is decided. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how I can help your clients reach value faster.
