Hiring Manager

Hiring Team

Timedoor (PT Timedoor Indonesia)

Dear Hiring Team,

The real product of an IT team is not software. It is confidence: the user who knows their ticket will not disappear into a void. ServiceNow exists to make that confidence systematic, and I have spent 11 years on the front line where it is either earned or lost. I bring exactly the foundation this role describes: enterprise applications and IT systems work, including two end-to-end ERP implementations and a legacy migration, and years of direct IT support. I have managed JIRA workflows and trained users at every level, from executives to front-line staff. I know IT Service Management from the inside: incidents, changes, SLAs, and the human reality behind each ticket. ServiceNow itself is a platform I have not yet worked in, and I say that plainly. What I have is everything around it: SQL Server and MySQL, REST APIs, automation with Python and n8n, and the discipline of enterprise support. New platforms I learn fast; service is already in my bones. Timedoor's range, from web and mobile to AI system integration, is exactly the kind of team where I do my best work: builders who ship for real clients and keep learning. I am fluent in English, at ease with technical teams and end users alike, and quick to earn my place. I would welcome the opportunity to discuss how I can contribute to Timedoor's ServiceNow practice.
