Hiring Manager

Hiring Team

PT Organik Sehat Alami

Dear Hiring Team,

The most expensive AI tool in any company is the one nobody uses. The license costs a little; the quiet retreat back to spreadsheets costs everything. My job for the past several years has been to make sure that retreat never happens: I do not just build the automation, I make the team want it. That is the role you are hiring for. I ship it in production today: n8n and Python workflows that cut manual processing by 70 percent, AI-powered e-commerce platforms on KrispiBabi and Corpus, and a git-based CMS that lets a non-technical business owner run her entire website alone. Each one began the way your JD describes: sitting with the operational team, finding the work that did not need a human, mapping the process, then staying through training and documentation until the new habit stuck. Before that, I spent eleven years at CITT Services doing technology enablement the hard way: helping non-technical users across six brokerage platforms adopt systems under real pressure. I bring strong project management, sharp analytics, and the ability to explain any technical concept to a non-technical audience in Bahasa Indonesia or English. PT Organik Sehat Alami builds its business on healthy habits. AI adoption is a habit too, and enabling it across an entire company is exactly the work I love. I would welcome a conversation about making your teams faster.

Warm regards,
